Mohammed Said Al-Touraihi

A Dutch-Iraqi historian and publisher specialized in interreligious dialogue with particular emphasis on methodological questions, comparative theology and history of religions. He has a special interest in the history and heritage of India and currently holds his chair of the Encyclopedia of India.

Iraqi born, he is founder and editor-in-chief of Al-Mawsem Encyclopedia, specialized in Islamic heritage and tradition, of which until 2015 hundred twenty-three volumes have appeared since its founding in 1988 and contains more than 54,000 pages. His editorial work consists of 135 books and includes the Encyclopedia of India in Arabic (see below for a complete list).

He is the founder Kufa Academy, a non-profit organization for oriental studies. The organization has a unique, mainly Arabic, book collection that includes over twenty thousand books, including old manuscripts. A great effort is put in enhancing dialogue between the Islamic world and the West through publications and conferences.

Al-Touraihi received several awards, medals and honorary doctorates from various universities and organizations.
